ACT With Choice Exercise

Away Moves

This involves the psychological processes of Fusion, Experiential Avoidance, Resistance and unworkable Action.

4

- Getting caught up in unhelpful thoughts.
- Obsessions, rumination and worry.
- Struggling with unwanted emotions.
- Counter-productive behaviours.
- Habits and over-indulgences.
- Denial and distraction.
- Procrastination and avoidance.
- Suppression and control.

These approaches sometimes provide short-term relief or distraction; however, they often backfire in the longer-term and validate the underlying problem.

Unhelpful, Unworkable, Unsustainable

Choice

Unwanted Feelings

This includes uncomfortable or Distressing feelings, unwanted thoughts, compulsions, impulses and sensations. E.g. intrusions, anxiety, anger, depression, guilt, shame, irritability, physical tension and pain.

Triggers

This can include external situations, activities and events, as well as internal sensations, intrusive thoughts, impulses, images or memories.

The Problem

This is the underlying issue, root cause, process or label for the difficulty experienced. E.g. panic, clinical depression, OCD, PTSD, low self-esteem.

Towards Moves

This involves the psychological processes of Focused Attention, Reframing, Acceptance, Defusion, Perspective-taking and values

Committed Action.

- Mindfulness; sharpening the focus on the now
- Acceptance; a willingness to experience whatever comes up without resistance or judgement.
- Defusion; Unhooking from unhelpful thoughts and feelings.
- Observing Self; Taking the observer perspective rather than being the perpetrator, victim or casualty.
- Committed Action; Acting according to values and goals.

This involves a willingness to experience discomfort in the service of values and goals.

helpful, workable, sustainable

ACT With Choice Exercise

